

National Archives & Records Administration Tour

Who Do You Think You Are?

Genealogy Roadshow

Finding Your Roots

So many television shows are dedicated to ancestral research and answering questions about people's heritage—where they came from, how did they get here, when did they arrive?

Interested in exploring your family's history? Join us for a tour of the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) regional office at their new location in Broomfield, Colorado.

The Microfilm/Genealogy Room has over 60,000 rolls of microfilmed Federal records, most of which are valuable for researching family histories with the United States. There are also computers for accessing the Ancestry.com website/records as well as printers and copiers available for use.

We will have a tour of the facility and a short presentation on getting started with genealogy research.

Date: September 20, 2016

Time: 10:00 a.m.

Place: National Archives, 17101 Huron Street, Broomfield, CO 80023

Fee: None

RSVP: Required by September 1, 2016 — Contact Joni Sakaguchi—jsak5280@centurylink.net or 303-452-6888

If you need assistance with transportation, please let us know and we will make arrangements.